Not illustrated. 1921 Excerpt: .this kind in the back of her mind when she essays to organize her subject-matter and method into units of study, and to use the project-method as a basis of her work. But unless she does build around a central subject, unless she knows that reading is a mode of attention and not a subject of study, unless she realizes that oral reading is a form of speech, not a subject of study, but a mode of expression, unless, in other words, her subject matter functions, according to its relative and absolute educative values, she will find her project falling about her ears like a house of cards and she will return to the beaten paths with which she is familiar and will continue to hinder the spontaneous growth of the child and to misuse and pervert the educative function of the subjects in her daily program. Here, then is a measure by which to gauge the educative process and upon which to build our schoolroom procedure. Great minds have contributed to this organization of subject-matter, Herbert, Ziller, Stoy, Rein, and Froebel, and our own great reformer, Colonel Parker, of blessed memory. It remained for him to take the best from this system of educational philosophy and to found a school in which the theory might be tried and tested by actual schoolroom practice. Some of us today who sat at the feet of the great master are surprised to find-a method we have used for...
