Excerpt: . LETTER XI To Mrs. Berkeley Winterbourne, The Vicarage, Saxonstead, Wilts. Mikonkatu 17, Helsinki, Suomi. Dear Lucy, (That is my present address in real Finnish.) I think one of your letters must have gone astray. There was a welcome budget from Saxonstead awaiting me when I returned to Helsingfors, written immediately after the Harvest Festival, relating how Mrs. Birtle picked up the slighted vegetable marrow and walked out of church with it, just before the service began. Then I received another letter from you, three days ago, in which the mollification of Mary Birtle is passed over as a thing accomplished; so I take it that there is a link wanting in the chain of narrative. Arvid says cheerfully, People lose a lot of letters at this time of year. Foreign mails come quickly and uncertainly by St. Petersburg, or slowly and surely by...
